DAVIS THEATRE. The Dread of Doom, Three-Reel Special Feature Today.

well selected variety of photoplays is being shown at this popular theatre today, headed by a three-reel feature, The Dread of Doom, a photo-tragedy, nucted by the famous Palace fames cast, with Ermete Zacconi, the Mansfield of Italy, playing the leading role. Sacrifice and sorrow and the rim evil arising from the chance bite of a captive monkey are the primal ients of the tragedy, how a man deavoring to shield his sister from a herrifying suspicion, is the story. The other photoplays consist of Mission beautiful love story produced by the American company, with Warall laid around an old monastery, and tells how the mission bells were the means of converting an atheist. the Nick of Time is a powerful Thanuser drama showing how a child brought about a happy reunion of its we parents. The famous Mutual Weekly is also on this bill and shows wents taken in all parts of the world. The Latest in Life Saving is a Keystone comedy that is educational as well as funny and shows the latest methods employed by the life saving crews. A Game of Pool, another comedy by the same company, shows the Schmidt tried to beat his opponent by using a big magnet to draw the balls into the pockets, but the ta-bles were turned on himself. Manager Attended Reunion at No. Craig is singing his own composition, I'm Going Back to Chattanooga.

BREED THEATRE. A False Accusation, Sensational Indian Patheplay for Today.

Three big western stories are on the the 15th Massachusetts, and Deane of the 1st Connecticut. heading these three is the powerful Patheplay entitled A False Accusation. This tells of a young Indian child who has a craze for the dolls of New Planking for Quinebaug Bridge. The infant is recovered just in the nick of time and the neck of the discharged cowboy saved. The Sixth ment, the exceedingly thrilling Vitagraph western story, is the some of realism and the scenery is especially worthy of mention. An Actor's Strategy is a splendid western drama, while Making Good is an unsual story of the success of a motion and about an up-to-date studio. The Stolen Face, the big Japanese novelty, is a wonderful story photographed both in Japan and America.

AT THE AUDITORIUM. China's Greatest Magician Today.

The Auditorium is offering a genuine feature act today, something new and different, an act that is called the suthe Orient and is an offering of royal splendor. Rush Ling Toy was formerly imperial mystifier to the royal court of Pekin, and this wily Oriental present with marvelous rapidity an array of wonderful illusions that have baffled the wisest Americans. New York critics gasped with astonishment at the speed and skill of this most marvelous magician of the century. This act represents an investment of $25,000 and carries a carload of gorceous Oriental scenery, effects, tapestries and Chinese costumes. See this sensation of years; he will baffle you; an you solve his marvelous feats? How does he do that last trick?

The big feature act will be preceded C. W. Littlefield, an impersonator mimic of extraordinary skill, and character portrayals will set everyone tailed for duty on next Saturday; Sec

POETRY'

PARTED.

Beyond the cornfield and the wood, Nestling neath the bill. In the old days a cottage stood, Beside a rulned will.

And often on the edge of dark
I lingered in the lane,
Until a candle's welcome spark Shone in the window pane. Long years have gone; tonight once more Beside the foot-worn stile

n the old lane, as oft before,
I wait and dream a while. Above the pines one lonely star Shines like her casement lit, But far away—alas! too far, For her to open it.

Fond dream! my longing eyes be Yet must I turn again, And like a little lonely child Stretch out my arms in vain!

The moon is but a clouded disc, Only the star burns bright, It seems to me Gou's asterisk Upon the page of night,
